

Dr. Matthias Waimer

Matthias Waimer studied aerospace engineering at the University of Stuttgart and joined the German Aerospace Center (DLR) in 2006. At the DLR Institute of Structures and Design his research work is focused on crashworthiness of transport airplanes, rotorcraft and eVTOLs; working on conceptual designs, numerical simulation and experimental testing. He is responsible for the Institute's research field 'aeronautical crashworthiness'.